Concept Note

The Indian Civil Services offer a vital pathway for fostering inclusive governance and driving social transformation. However, the current preparation landscape for these competitive examinations remains disproportionately tilted in favour of urban, affluent, and socially advantaged candidates. Aspirants from marginalised communities—including SCs, STs, OBCs, as well as those from rural regions and economically weaker sections, continue to encounter structural obstacles in accessing quality guidance and training resources.

This seminar aims to confront these disparities by fostering a platform for dialogue, collaboration, and policy innovation. Its core objective is to identify and promote inclusive training models that guarantee equitable opportunities for all aspirants, irrespective of their socio-economic background, to realize their potential and contribute meaningfully through the civil services.
